THE WORLD IS LIKE A BATTLEFIELD
POLICE
A battlefield
that never stops competing.

A place where everyone is trained to survive.
to WIN

Love becomes a partner in crime.
Family becomes a team racing for survival.
Every relationship is strategic.
Every kindness has a cost.

The Hunger Games
without the cameras,

The Last of Us
without mercy—

an endless war zone.
where silence means danger
and rest feels like death.

But there are some who grow tired of fighting.

looking for Someone who doesn't need them to fight at all.

Othere stare in disbelief, mockery, anger.
that kind of peace looks foolish in war

but true victory was never winning.
It was discovering that you were never meant to fight in it to begin with.
